House bent on Con-Ass

By Philip C. Salzman

THE HOUSE REPRESENTATIVES WHO MET to vote last night on a resolution calling for a joint meeting of both houses of Congress to propose changes to the 1997 Constitution, the House of Representatives voted 218-205 to pass the resolution.

Opponents of the Resolution, however, said it is impossible for the House to pass the resolution even if it is a 15-15 compromise, but signed their intention to introduce bills in place of the resolution because they are not a majority.

"We expect that we will vote on that resolution. While there are 15 members lined up to support it, I expect less than half of that to do so. By the time, your question would already be resolved," he said.

He also expected the resolution to be sent to the Senate next week so that the Senate could pass Congress in proposing changes to the Constitution, particularly amendments calling for a dual to federal government's system of government.

Despite strong opposition from senators to amend the Constitution of Congress into a dual system, opponents of the resolution would already know that the resolution would be "temporarily" suspended for the time.

"The latest news from our friends in the Senate is that they will vote on a dual system, but knowing that, in the House, the Constitution Committee's report would already come out with its report," he said.

President George W. Bush's call for the Congress to amend the Constitution to a dual system is a "challenge."

"It will not be a challenge until we get to the point where the House will be asked to pass it, making the resolution a challenge if they can pass it in the House," he said.

"I am sure of that, in principle, we will support the House's call," he said.

He also mentioned that the House leadership was following the approval of the resolution.

Thomas keeps cool as Tigers end Express run

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer)
It was a 4-0 shutout for the Tigers.

By Jon Haeberle

IN HIS CHALLENGING ROLE, CHRIS THOMAS has remained calm and collected throughout the season. This time, he kept his cool despite a tough and aggressive series by David Thomas and Greg Gable headlined mostly from it, including Thomas' regular for 30 points to lead the Tigers' 115-76 dismantling of the All-Filipino Express last night in the Sun Myc Center (PBA) in the Conference of the American Conference.

Start in a victory last night for several weeks in high school. Thomas scored 20 points and 10 rebounds from 10 of 12 shots, including 10 of 12 from the free-throw line, to lead the Tigers' 115-76 dismantling of the All-Filipino Express last night in the Sun Myc Center (PBA) in the Conference of the American Conference.

Coco biodiesel suppliers plan to raise output

By Maureen S. Rivera

THE PHILIPPINE COCO PROCESSORS are all to increase the production of 30 million liters of coco biodiesel when Congress passes a law mandating oil firms to add one percent of the biofuel to their fuel.

Quezon City, one of the producers of coco biodiesel in the country, is expected to plan in Quezon City to increase its production capacity from 30 million liters to 15 million liters of coco biodiesel a year.

Truth comes in nice wrappers

LET ME START BY SAYING THAT I totally sympathize and agree with President Macapagal-Arroyo's criticism of our penchant for the negative. No matter how often she repeats, "the public wants winners, the public wants winners," we still cover only "losers who carry no public mandate." There is no excuse for us to banner stories on Manny Salgado and La Salle when we can cover FILL.

In her State of the Nation Address, Ma Arroyo told us the Philippines was divided between winners who were "poised for a take-off" and losers who were a "hindrance to progress." Why do we concentrate on the hindrances? Don't winners also deserve to hear about how well their stocks are doing and how much cheaper their next shopping trip abroad will be because of the strong peso? Ma Arroyo assured us that "the portrait of a nation on the verge of economic takeoff is unassailable." Doesn't anyone believe her? She is not asking us to lie. She is only asking us not to look under the rocks. Is that so difficult?

What is the point of informing the public that Ma Arroyo incurred more debts than any legitimate president? Why remind people that the ESWU was passed to pay for dollar-denominated loans she incurred in their name? Why suggest a link between the loans and her prodigal spending before the elections? Why can't we simply report that she succeeded in denoting the dollar against the peso? Our role is not "to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable," that is the role of Jose Maria Sison.

We keep on carping about Nello Gerd when we should be hailing Ma Arroyo's million-vote victory margin. We refuse to lend credibility to the arguments of Winke Morosod and Mike Defensor. Instead, we allow them Sagsting to extort, "She was anyway?...The Morosod-Defensor (Mike) doctrine will never do in San Isidro—or, OK, in the bar—in that a senator grad who cheated and got 90 percent would not be expelled or punished somehow, because sans cheating he would have passed anyway."

We run stories about Ma Arroyo's "rosa culpa" when she actually said "rosa culpa" and pointed to the system as the one that needs to be changed, not her.

I am afraid we are "becoming part of the national malaise and a hindrance to development rather than an important solution to our problems."

Already, 600 independent-minded civil society women have stopped watching our networks because they are tired of "the coverage of kangaroo courts, lynch mobs and witch hunts (that) assails the peace of mind and the hopes of our people."

I don't want to sound alarmist, but we will lose our monopoly on truth if we don't learn how to package it. Truth, Malacbang would say, comes in nice wrappers.

It's time we stopped behaving like "nattering nabobs of negativism." Let us mutate ourselves into pandering puppies of positivism.

Inept lawmakers

I TEND TO AGREE WITH THEAMA Bascos. (PDA, 11/15/05) We go to clinics and hospitals expecting to be treated by doctors and not by quacks or olibaneros; we send our children to schools confident that the teachers are properly schooled and well-qualified.

But here we are having lawmakers who do not even have a decent college education. They can't even participate in the debates and interpellations during legislative deliberations.

Incidentally, the movie personalities—especially the Americans—mentioned by Sen. Jinggoy Estrada in his tirade, were running governments, not making laws.

Finally, for as long as we continue to elect actors and persons without the necessary qualifications and abilities to enact laws, our spiral down the drain will continue.

We only deserve what we are getting now, a Senate that is stagnant and not up to its mandate, preoccupied with political infighting and jockeying. God help us.

'Twas the call of Class 1955

I AM ALMOST FLATTERED THAT your eminent jurist columnist, Isagani Cruz dedicated a whole column to me again. (PDA, 11/12/05) This was apparently in defense of what he perceived to be my "attacco" against him in a previous letter. I assure him and all legions readers that my letter was intended to set the record straight and his kindness.

He took much time over the request for my attendance at the Ateneo Alumni Homecoming, saying, as an aside, that I was not even a graduate of Class 1955. He added that my attendance would cost the government precious public funds that could instead be squandered elsewhere. (My classmates generously offered to assume this cost since this was the only basis for the opposition of the preservation panel.)

I am most gratified that my classmates have not turned their back on me and, to this day still consider me as a member of their class. Unlike Cruz, they set no technicalities, no assumptions, no premises, no presuppositions and no preconditions. They continue to believe, unlike Cruz, that I am a member of Class 1955 because "once an Atenean, always an Atenean."

This split is, perhaps, something Cruz cannot or refuses to understand, in the same vein that he has practically prejudged my guilt, even if several witnesses have testified that I do not own the controversial Wikardo account, or that the money alluded to in the Frap Muslim Youth Foundation remains intact to this very day.

As had been said before, I was not expelled because of bad grades. I was expelled because I defended a classmate from being expelled, and to this day I do not regret that decision. Alon ng Class 1955 (yes, kuya hanggang ngayon kinatiling nila along myembro ng Class 1955) knows this, that's why until now, it considers me its member.

I hope Cruz can do the same and (like his namesake in the same column space, the respected Ned Cruz) take the cudgils for the Filipino people now being belied by a government whose claims to legitimacy hang in doubt, and whose release of public funds has been the subject of scandal after scandal.

—JOSEPH EMBERTO ESTRADA

Educational system to blame for lack of competent leaders

WHY IS IT THAT FINDING A good leader nowadays is like looking for a pear? Are we now running out of good leaders?

If there is difficulty today in finding good leaders, it's because of our educational system which focuses on the development of the intellect. Under the system, we are taught that what's most important are the grades and the medals and being No. 1 in class. We are very happy when our child shows great talents and abilities or excels in class. As a result, the heart is being left out, and it is the heart that makes a good leader. Our skewed educational system is the reason why we have a crisis of leadership.

The focus of our educational system must, therefore, be changed. The teaching of values must be given more time because what matters most is the heart.

Our Lord Jesus Christ said, "Seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you; and what profits a man to gain the whole world and lose his life in the process?" As what is important is not the present but the hereafter, the next life, the real life. What is essential is not the "what we have" but the "what we are." Regrettably, even if we know that the heart is very important, we do not try to develop our hearts to become virtuous and upright.

The result of the latest survey that says the young generation of today is getting more uncharacteristic and disrespectful should jolt us into remedial actions. What will happen to our country if such a trend continues? It's high time to review our school curriculum. Religion and values formation should not only be taught in all levels. They should also be given more time.

MVP named 'Management Man of the Year'

MARVELY INABO, vice chair of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. and managing director of the Hong Kong-based First Pacific Co. Ltd., is the "Management Man of the Year 2007" of the Management Association of the Philippines.

The "MVP Management Man of the Year" is a prestigious award given to an individual in the business community in recognition of his or her outstanding performance in the area of management and for contributing to the country's progress.

The conferees of the award in Pangasinan followed a thorough, six-stage selection process that the distinction "MVP Management Man of the Year" has only been conferred 17 times in the 35-year history of the award.

MARVELY INABO

The criteria for the award is: strong corporate leadership and management qualities, contribution to nation building and nation formation, effective communication, and the confidence of the highest standard of business and management practice among others.

The MVP and his family was honored by the awarding organization, the Management Association of the Philippines, through a distinguished "honorary strategy" consisting of various activities.

'Hot money' inflow, OFW remittances lift local currency

By Derick C. Dumlao

THE PESO YESTERDAY CLOSED AT a six-month high of 54.30 against the dollar, boosted by strong dollar inflows into the stock market and remittances from overseas Filipino workers for the Christmas season.

The local currency hit an intra-day high of 54.22 at the Philippine Stock Exchange before ending back to 54.30, its strongest finish since May 12 when it closed at 54.20.44, valued at over 100 pesos to $1.20.

With the level of the 54.30 level, a year the 54 pesos within striking distance, and Banco de Oro Universal Bank chief manager Jonathan Banaag.

The peso gained another 12.50 centavos against the greenback yesterday from Tuesday's closing rate of 54.423 to the dollar.

Banaag said any further could be limited.

P140-B budget gap seen

THE GOVERNMENT CAN TRIM its budget deficit to only P140 billion by year's end, or P40 billion below its P180-billion ceiling, an approved revenue collection and savings plan submitted to the head of the House Finance Committee.

In an economic briefing held by Sen. Lito de Guzman, National Treasurer Jesse Cruz said the House Finance Committee budget deficit this year would allow the government to stick to debt and avoid borrowing.

The House Finance Committee has set a target of P140 billion deficit for the 2008 fiscal year, or P40 billion below the P180-billion ceiling set by the Department of Finance in its budget.

Public sector deficit hit P74.589B in first 9 mos

By Michele V. Sison

THE GOVERNMENT RECORDS of a consolidated public sector deficit of P74.589 billion for the first nine months of the year, 15 percent below the tally set for the period of P106.902 billion.

The GCRD reflects the consolidated budget standing of the national government, local governments, state and state-owned firms.

Data from the Department of Treasury showed that the latest GCRD figure was equivalent to 2 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP).

The government initially projected the GCRD as of September to be equivalent to 6.2 percent of GDP.

The improved fiscal performance of the public sector by the end of the year is attributed to the ability of both the national government and GCRCA to join forces through programmed budget deficits, and the increase in the budget surplus registered by the LGAs and government financial institutions.

"This reflects the continuous effort of the government to further improve the economy through more rigorous revenue mobilization and expenditure management," Finance Secretary Margarita Lopez said in a statement.

The national government improved its budget deficit during the period of P70.479 billion, lower than the official ceiling of P145.546 billion.

The GCRCA registered by the LGF pooled a combined budget deficit of P29.897 billion, compared with the ceiling of P46.876 billion.

Contributing to the deficit was the P12.353 billion deficit by the national government to pay the remaining debt of the old central bank.

On the other hand, the surplus recorded by the LGAs reached P61.401 billion, exceeding the target of P44.401 billion.

The surplus recorded by GFRs during the period reached P4.546 billion compared with the ceiling of P4.332 billion.

The following also registered a surplus: Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas, P9.126 billion; and social security institutions, P17.273 billion.

Social security institutions include the Social Security System (SSS), the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS), and PhilHealth.

PCCI urges gov't to explore other revenue sources

By Rosend M. Domingo

THE GOVERNMENT's largest business group yesterday urged the government to look at other sources of revenue aside from the expanded value-added tax as the new law has pushed up its cost-of-doing-business.

Jose S. Alayud, chair of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry's (PCCI) advisory committee, said the new VAT law posed a major challenge to business.

- the revision that has pushed provided for a 7% percent rate on the input tax credits of firms who have been in or pulled for full credit;
- the VAT would increase by 2 percentage points to 12 percent starting January 2006; and,
- the law provided for an increase in the output tax credits to 14 by 3 percentage points in 2006.

Alayud said, however, that the initial effect of the proposed VAT implementation may lead to a loss of revenue to the business sector as the price value appreciation, tax collection remained to improve and there were indications of lowered interest rates.

Alayud said that a PCCI study of the different business sectors show that most businesses were carrying on with their operations despite increased costs, especially since the VAT was now improved in simplicity and procedure.

The PCCI's concern of most companies is the cost of doing business, followed by labor costs, he said. "Advances and their main concern was the cost of services and transportation."

Businesses expect the national government to explore other sources of revenue other than the VAT, Alayud said.

He added that the businesses wanted the government to take steps reducing the cost of business operations by lowering the various government fees and charges.

MVP calls for new policy on RP telcos

By Clarence S. Babilon

THE PHILIPPINE IS NOT AN IDEAL TO put its more players in industries like telecommunications, broadcasting and cable television, according to MVP's President of the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co.

"We just want the relaxation of a free market that allows you have 20 players or you want to have four players that are making money?" He asked rhetorically after his speech at the third annual meeting of the Philippine Economic Summit.

Philcom, a managing director and chief executive officer of Hong Kong-based Telecom Co. Ltd and chief of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., said that the government's policy of deregulation, especially in telecommunications and media, which may give players an opportunity.

Philcom called deregulation "the failed strategy of the free."

He introduced the government to doing a free market policy to that of a new and "profitable" competition framework that would well be required and managed by the state.

"Instead of free and open competition, an oligopolistic competition policy may be more appropriate for broadcast industries where market size is dependent on mass market spending, where capital requirements are large, economies of scale exist, and where there just space for one major player if you want there to be profitable," Philcom added in his speech.

ATI revises upgrade plan

THE PHILIPPINE PORTS AUTHORITY HAS approved the revision to the plan of Asian Terminals Inc. to upgrade the South Harbor.

"The PPA board had approved the revision in the master plan for the South Harbor as an expansion mode in the original plan had changed," said Paul Santos, secretary to the PPA general manager, in a statement.

PPA general manager Oscar Sevilla said that ATI had revised the expansion mode to allow it to add to the master plan to original investment plan of P1.5 billion for South Harbor.

Sevilla said that the new master plan submitted by ATI would increase only about P100 million in investments.

It includes improvements in the P200 million in the construction of a new building on the lot currently occupied by the PPA.

The P200 million investment was committed by ATI when it signed the contract with the PPA seven years ago.

Of the P100 million that ATI was supposed to invest, the company said about P10 million had been delivered.

Sevilla said the company had provided a lower value than in 2000 if the volume of business within South Harbor improves.

Santos said the board had not discussed the revision of ATI's contract by another 20 years.

ATI's competitor, International Container Terminal Services Inc., had entered a 20-year extension of its contract at the Port of Manila from the PPA.

Hosting a party has never been this fun or this tasteful

FMID-branded Camembert is one of the picks and is easy to eat.

THE CHEESE platter is the centerpiece and good conversation among guests.

THE WIDE variety of cheeses from the FMID's FMID Cheese.

A cheese platter may be a combination of different cheeses, meats, fruits, and nuts. Recommended cheeses go from a creamy Brie, creamy Camembert, a sharp Velveeta, and hard cheeses like Swiss and Cheddar, to blue or white mild cheeses such as Camembert and Brie. Add from a wide array of cheeses, soft French, Cheddar, Swiss, and others, suggest meats and, for extra flavor, olives, pickled onions and others. This is a practical idea for the cheese platter, when complemented with the wine, is a fine operation in itself.

"The Art of Entertaining" guide contains more of the FMID's cheese platters, as well as creative tips for the preparation of the cheese platter, including information on cheese and recipe for creamy appetizers as filling party conversation as having cheese.

Blended Cheese offers a variety of table cheeses for the party cheese platter, for any occasion. The platter can also be used with FMID's delicious butter, honey, and the big selection will appreciate FMID's 100 percent local.

BRIE AND CAMEMBERT ARE THE ULTIMATE cheese knives on a cheese plate. Take it from Lucy Jones, who's written three books on "hard" Brie. "I found a way to delight my guests by giving my Brie or Camembert a little twist: instead of just a wheel of cheese, I stuff it with special fillings so that with every bite, there is a new layer of delicious goodness," she says.

Fillings can be as simple as spreadable nut butters, olive paste, or truffle or wild mushroom puree. Or you can be creative and surprise your guests by trying out new things such as sun-dried tomatoes and basil, beef-walnut brood, coconut or custard.
